DIGITAL CITIZENSHIP
November 3-7, 2025 week

Digital citizenship isn't just about screens—it's about helping kids make healthy, thoughtful choices in all the ways they connect with the world. At school, we practice these skills everyday, and during Digital Citizenship Week we pause to review and celebrate what students are learning. Conversations at home help students understand when and how technology use makes sense and how it can align with your family's values and goals. Small steps like talking about kindness online or setting aside a place for phones to be stored overnight can make a big difference in raising confident and responsible digital citizens.

25-26 DIG CIT LESSONS FAMILY MEDIA AGREEMENTS

Looking for a way to set clear, healthy expectations at home? Try creating a Family Media Plan together! It's a simple way to decide when, where, why, and how technology should be used in your family. Check out the following page to get started or to revisit these conversations.
